THE THEME

Some of the most dramatic biblical imagery comes on this last Sunday of our liturgical year. The overall imagery on this feast is striking. Israel's rulers do not adequately care for their people. So, God will do it, as both shepherd and judge. But, the responsibility for the neediest shifts in the Gospel. When the Son of Man comes in glory, he will judge us for our acts of mercy. We cannot look to God to care for those in need. The job is now ours, and the King now judges us.

THE READINGS

EZEKIEL 34:11-12, 15-17: I myself will look after and tend my sheep.

1CORINTHIANS 15:20-26, 28: Paul proclaims Christ's death, resurrection and second coming.

MATTHEW 25:31-46: The Son of Man will judge us on our acts of mercy.

From Fr. Peter's Desk
Christ The King

Dear Parish Family:

Today's First Reading, from the Book of Ezekiel, presents God's people as sheep. The passage demonstrates God's attitude and actions toward us as our Shepherd: God cares for us with goodness and mercy, even or especially when we are lost, astray or injured.

St. Paul, in this First Letter to the Corinthians, assures the Corinthians of the resurrection and that, just as God raised Jesus, God through Jesus will raise us all from the dead and give Christ a place of supremacy.

In Matthew's Gospel of today, the people, referred to as the sheep and goats, share two things in common. First, both call Jesus "Lord" and second, both groups express that they have never seen Jesus in a needy condition.

Neither group knows or understands the reasons or implications of their actions, but one chose to act with mercy while the other chose to ignore the needs of others they encountered. The significance to this is that while our understanding can be limited, the most important thing is how we treat "these least ones". Jesus reminds us that our actions are more important than our words and God wants our actions to be expressions of mercy for the weak and vulnerable.

My dear brothers and sisters in Christ, by today's Feast, we praise Christ, the King of the Universe, who has made us His own in Baptism. Belonging to Jesus makes claims on us that cannot be ignored and God's judgment of us will be based on our practice of the Works of Mercy. Let us pray for each other for the strength to walk this path of life with love and mercy.

May God Bless You All,
Fr. Peter
